Walled in a circular park of about 1,000 trees and 3.6 million live plants, the Sena Akshardham is home to an elephant, a rhino, deer, leopards, tigers, macague monkeys and about 300 different species of birds. You can also see fake mummies and papier mâché reproductions of famous Indian people and animals. The park is also home to 70 different rare species of plants that are endemic to India. Visitors can also enjoy the sprawling gardens that would be a joy to visit at any time of the day or night, and especially during the winter months. However, the Akshardham is only open from November to March, making it an ideal place to unwind in Delhi with some of the most spectacular wildlife in the city. There are also many beautiful areas to relax in such as the Mughal garden and tranguil parterres. And if you just want to see a complete different Delhi, why not visit the nearby Manek Chowk market, which sells many of the handmade products you would expect to find on Delhi streets. The friends who I was sharing the flight with had chosen to meet me at this place we had shared earlier in our friendship because it was a great little spot to have dinner in a quieter part of the city. There was some drama with the friend and I didn't need to be there for any of it, so I'd accepted the delay. I hadn't planned on it though. When my friend asked if 50b96ab0b6
